Acadza vs TestVantage

Staff planning note. Facts from Acadza public pages and Play listing only. Not a review, not an attack, and not a copy of their papers, videos, or brand.

In the app: Help > How we compare > Acadza (path /how-we-compare).

In one line

Acadza sells a packed JEE/NEET library plus classes and a phone app. TestVantage is a living bank and exam product: you own the questions, students practise and get analysis, staff convert and review.

1. Study material pack -- theory, examples, chapter summaries, a very large question count (Play listing also quotes a bigger number), about 9,000 formulas, about 4,500 lecture videos. Pick exam, subject, and concept.
2. Practice and mocks -- assignments and tests by chapter, concept, difficulty, and type. Unlimited mocks. Super-tough questions. Patterns they name: JEE Main, Advanced, BITSAT, NEET, CET.
3. Previous-year papers -- they advertise PYQ papers from 1975-2022.
4. Formula sheets -- build and download a custom sheet, with memory tips.
5. Backlog plan -- catch-up from missed chapters to current class, reminders and check tests.
6. Revision pack -- faculty pick five most probable questions for a topic (their claim).
7. Speed booster -- timed picking and clicking, plus racing friends or All-India rankers.
8. Doubt and mentor (paid add-on) -- Chanakya-style help; they say within 12 hours.

10. Classes and phone app -- live and recorded classes, class alerts, Android app.

Counts above are their claims, not our audit.

Planning notes (this session already covered)

Added on our side vs their public list: My Formula Sheet, PYQ paper calendar, doubt-on-question, Today's Target.

Still not ours and not planned as a copy: their video pack, native app before go-live, paid 12-hour mentor desk, their private most-probable list.
